A series of billboards appeared in Times Square as part of a Victims of Communism Memorial Foundation campaign. The Foundation is a Washington, D.C.- based organization dedicated to educating the public about communism's legacy worldwide.

The billboards note that today, 1 in 5 people on earth live under communism; that it remains illegal to mention the 1989 Tiananmen Square massacre; and one billboard lists the deaths caused by communist regimes by country. China tops the list at 65 million.
