In delivering his traditional Christmas message, Pope Bendedict XVI is right to praise Chinese Christians for their courage in continuing to uphold their faith even under brutal communist suppression, and it is not all coincidence that Chinese special police arranged the killing of the village chief, Mr. Qian Yunhui on Christmas Day. It is the true character of communism, to rule by violence and intimidation.

"My father was murdered.."

A daughter of Mr. Qian told the Hong Kong Epoch Times : "My father received a phone call that morning and went out straight away, and then later the villagers told us the tragedy happened. My father was murdered...."

At about 9am on 25th Dec., Mrs Li Haiyan from a nearby village went to the shop to buy a lotto ticket. She saw a white Sontana parked beside the village entrance, and Mr. Qian struggling with 3 men all in white gloves and black cloth covering their mouths: "There was another man beside them in the same uniform.

Mrs. Li said that Mr. Qian looked distressed, so she went up to ask the three men to be kind, and was roughly pushed away by the men; Li was scared and walked away from them quickly, but looked back to see a truck was parked aside of road before, driving slowly towards them, and the four men throw Mr. Qian under the wheels of the truck.
